Decentralised Offering)

Abreu Advogados has advised impactMarket on the IDO (Initial Decentralised Offering) of $PACT utility tokens on the “Polkastarter” platform. The firm also advised on the seed investment round worth €1.15 million, in which this web 3.0 company was valued at €13.2 million.

impactMarket is a protocol to fight poverty that enables the implementation of financial inclusion mechanisms, such as unconditional basic income (RBI), in vulnerable communities. Based on Blockchain technology, this protocol is managed by a decentralised, open and transparent network that supports disadvantaged societies through donations. Through the association between RBI and the Blockchain technology, impactMarket allows donors to monitor the real impact of their donations and grant beneficiaries access to a source of financing without resorting to intermediaries.

So far, impactMarket has distributed more than one million euros to 135 communities around the world, with donations from around 600 funders, helping to lift around 23 thousand people from 25 different countries out of extreme poverty.
