Across Legal has advised Nazca Ventures on an investment in Pulpo, a spanish startup that offers a software platform for intelligent fleet management.

Through this deal, a financing round of USD8m has been closed, led by the mexican venture capital fund Nazca Ventures.

Other international funds such as Femsa Ventures, Swanlaab, México Ventures and Cracks Funds have also participated in the operation, as well as some business angels from the sector.

The capital injection will allow Pulpo to continue expanding the functionalities of its platform to include management aspects related to electric vehicles, sustainability and emissions reduction.

It will also allow it to strengthen its focus on artificial intelligence to predict vehicle incidents, cost reduction and optimisation of operations.

The team from Across Legal advising Nazca Ventures was led by the partner, Felipe Cavero (pictured).
