Andersen in Spain Energy practice team has advised Solaer on the sale of 15 photovoltaic projects in Italy to the Italian subsidiary of Matrix Renewables, the renewable energy platform of the American fund TPG Capital, that was counselled by Pérez-Llorca

The Spanish company Solaer, dedicated to the promotion, development, construction, operation, and maintenance of solar parks in an integrated manner, thus gives a new boost to its international strategy and, in particular, to the business in Italy, where it already has a solar plant. It is currently present in Spain, Italy, the United Kingdom, Israel, India, Portugal, Japan, Mexico, the United States, Chile, and Colombia.
