CCS Abogados has appointed Almudena Fernández Carballal (pictured) as of counsel for its public law team, thus reinforcing key areas for the firm such as administrative law, urban planning and regulated sectors.

Almudena is a professor of administrative law at the University of A Coruña and specialises in urban law in the different areas that structure this sector.

In addition to being the author of various books, manuals and articles on the subject, she is a member of the International Association of Administrative Law, a member of the Ibero-American Forum of Administrative Law and a member of the Institute of Maritime Studies and the Coastal Observatory of the UDC.

She spent part of his professional career at CENGALISA (Galician Centre for Studies and Advice) until 2003. Then, in 2009, she joined the law firm Vales y Asociados as a practising lawyer, and in 2018 as founder of the Spin-off Ius Publicum of the UDC.
