Cuatrecasas has hired José Bonilla (pictured) as a new partner for its criminal law department in Madrid. He is expected to join the firm on 1 January 2023.

Bonilla holds a law degree from the Complutense University of Madrid and began his career more than 25 years ago working in financial institutions at the institutional and services level, later specializing in economic criminal law and financial and tax crimes.

He also has years of experience in the education sector, as a lecturer at renowned institutions such as Universidad Carlos III, Universidad Complutense, Universidad Autónoma and IE. He currently teaches criminal law at the Universidad Rey Juan Carlos and at the School of Legal Practice of the UCM.

"In recent years, I have been able to see how the firm has grown in size and recognition among clients and professionals to reach a leading position in the Spanish market. I identify with their way of understanding the practice of law, based on principles of honesty, effort, loyalty and the pursuit of excellence in the service of the client," said the new Cuatrecasas partner, José Bonilla.
