US firm Duff & Phelps, specialist in business risk and dispute management, has chosen Madrid to open a new business line related to construction and infrastructure consultancy. The firm has hired José Manuel Albaladejo Cañedo-Argüelles (pictured) to manage the new Madrid division and is presenting itself to public and private clients to act in the whole cycle of the business: from contract bidding, with technical and economic advice, to construction risk management, financing structuring or dispute resolution.

Albaladejo began his career at Acciona and has worked in various markets for Halcrow, Hill International and Keybrick Advisors.
