British dispute resolution firm Enyo Law has appointed Daniel Levy as partner to lead Spanish and Latin American practice

Levy (pictured) has been an of counsel at the firm since 2008. He is a dual Brazilian-Swiss national and has more than 15 years' experience representing international clients in complex cross-border commercial disputes, with a focus on cases involving but not limited to Latin America and Western Europe. Daniel also sits as an arbitrator in both institutional and ad hoc arbitration proceedings. He speaks fluent Portuguese, English, French and Spanish.
