Gómez-Acebo & Pombo has advised the listed company Técnicas Reunidas, a Spanish multinational, in its new short-term fixed income securities program (promissory notes) for a maximum amount of 175 million euros. In this program, Banca March acted as collaborating entity and registered advisor.

Técnicas Reunidas, an engineering company focused on the environment and energy, has once again resorted to the Alternative Fixed Income Market (MARF) to strengthen, with this new promissory note program, the diversification of its financing channels in the capital markets.
