Hogan Lovells' Madrid office has promoted Ignacio Sánchez to partner

Head of the Economic Criminal Law and Investigations area of the Madrid office, Sánchez has a wide experience in complex cases of fraud, property and corporate crimes, crimes related to the stock market and financial instruments, money laundering and public and private corruption. He also carries out internal national and cross-border investigations in companies to detect possible fraud and crimes and participates in any subsequent negotiations.

He joined Hogan Lovells from Cuatrecasas in 2010.
