Iberian Lawyer has launched a new specialist section dedicated to the Latin American legal market.

Iberian Lawyer's experience in providing legal and business news and information combined with the initiatives of the In-House & Compliance Club has already demonstrated that sharing knowledge and market insight is a crucial tool for business development. Expanding coverage of the Latin American market fits naturally with Iberian Lawyer's existing platform, readership and strategy.

The editor of Iberian Lawyer's new Latin American section is Ignacio Abella, former deputy editor - Latin America and general counsel editor at Chambers and Partners.

Abella, a Spanish-speaker, manages and leads the section from London, coordinating all news and insights related to Latin American and international law firms active in the region.

"I am delighted to join Iberian Lawyer as editor for Latin America and I look forward to the opportunities this new section will create for our readers and the legal community in Latin America and elsewhere," said Abella.

Mari Cruz Taboada, managing director at Iberian Legal Group (Iberian Lawyer) said: "It is very exciting to have the opportunity to reach out to the Latin American region in more in-depth in what it is Iberian Lawyer's 10th anniversary – this new initiative will bring the Iberian community and the world closer to a region that has proved extremely important for the expansion of global businesses."

Law firms with relevant news, or other announcements or press releases, should contact Abella at ignacio.abella@iberianlegalgroup.com
