Are you looking for a job in a global law firm? Would you like to work with international clients on cross-border transactions? Do you have the skills required?

July 16th-27th, Madrid, Spain

The two-week International Legal Summer School will help young lawyers develop their English language skills within a legal framework as really used in the business world. Apply today!

English is the language of the international business community, and they expect their law firms to advise them in English as well. If you are currently a law student or young lawyer who is interested in working within an international law firm, the message is clear, an understanding of legal English is an absolute necessity.

By focussing on legal English as it is used within the business world, the International Legal Summer School will help prepare you for a successful career as an international lawyer. Building upon the basic building blocks of legal English, the course will also provide you with an important knowledge of the English and US legal approaches (known as Common Law) plus an overview of business law concepts, terminology and documentation.

And speaking and writing in English is only one part of the challenge. Participants will also receive hands on practical experience on putting language into practice - advising clients, negotiating agreements and debating with other participants in English.
