Crowe Tax & Legal has hired Jordi de Juan as Tax partner, who joins the firm from EY Abogados

Crowe Tax & Legal reinforces its Tax procedural area with the incorporation of Jordi de Juan (pictured) as partner. He is a State Attorney on leave of absence and is joining Crowe Barcelona office from EY Abogados, where he has been a Tax Controversy partner at the same city office. Previous to EY, he was also a partner at Cuatrecasas.

Jordi teaches Tax and Financial law at the Universitat Internacional de Catalunya and has also been a Tax Law teacher at the Universitat de Barcelona for 8 years and a Civil Law teacher at UNED for 3 years. He holds a PhD in Tax law from the Universitat de Barcelona.

"This is a new and exciting stage in Crowe Tax & Legal, a reference firm with a consolidated expansive growth in the Legal and Tax advice market. It is a privilege to join this project, and even more, to share it with avant-garde professionals, who combine their high professional qualifications with their extraordinary human quality. It is a pleasure to meet again some of them, with whom I had already had the good fortune to share professional positions in other law firms or in the Tax Administration. As always, we will continue to work in the complex world of Contentious Taxation, from an unwavering commitment to the legal profession, always at the service of the client," said the new partner on his LinkedIn profile.
