Kepler-Karst has strengthened its Civil and Economic Criminal area with the incorporation of lawyers Antonio Montesdeoca and Víctor Manuel Miranda as Counsel

Kepler-Karst, a firm specialising in Business Law, has announced the hiring of lawyers Antonio Montesdeoca and Víctor Manuel Miranda as Counsel, both with more than twenty-five years of experience.

Antonio Montesdeoca (pictured left) joins the firm to strengthen the area of Administrative and Civil Law, while Víctor Manuel Miranda will bring his high level of expertise to the area of Economic Criminal Law. With their hirings, the Kepler-Karst team now counts on more than 20 professionals.

Victor Manuel Miranda (pictured right) has extensive experience in the defence of criminal matters, and specialises in proceedings involving crimes against property and socio-economic order, while Montesdeoca's speciality revolves around legal-private matters, with special emphasis on proceedings relating to contractual relations and rights in rem.

Kepler-Karst, a firm renowned for its ability to handle highly complex and public matters and with a presence in Las Palmas, Madrid and London, thus reinforces not only two key areas for the firm, but also the comprehensive advice it offers to companies and its position in the market of highly specialised boutique firms on the islands.

Luis Barber, partner in charge of the Kepler-Karst office in the Canary Islands, said: "We are facing a scenario in which we must be able to provide advice of the highest level to be able to face the new challenges of today, and we firmly believe that the areas of Economic and Administrative Criminal Law and Civil Law are going to be key in the coming months, once the State aid to protect companies is lifted and we see the real state of the business market."

Finally he added: "We continue to make progress in our growth strategy, which is based on having professionals of the highest level and experience to be able to offer the best possible advice to our clients. To start the year with Antonio and Víctor is without doubt a great honour."
