King & Wood Mallesons (KWM) has advised the private equity firm, Suma Capital, on the acquisition of 90% of Zamora Eco Energías, a subsidiary of the spanish company DH Eco Energías.

The Zamora Eco Energías project, which will involve an investment of about €25 million, will promote a renewable heat network in Zamora through biomass boilers, transporting hot water for heating and sanitary water. With a capacity of 20 MW, the grid will supply heat to 6,400 homes, public and private non-residential buildings.

The team of KWM advising on this deal was led by Corporate partner Germán Cabrera (pictured), with the collaboration of senior associate Gonzalo Fernández, and associates Rosa Chen and Natalia Rodríguez.
