Morais Leitão will open a new office in Singapore next month, in May 2023.

"With this new Singapore office, we strategically complement the trends we see in Portuguese investments in Asia, particularly in the sector of renewable energy, which has always been of central importance to us. Our partner André de Sousa Vieira will be heading this office, leveraging on a very significant international background," says Nuno Galvão Teles, managing partner of Moraes Leitão.

"Singapore has the largest number of multinationals represented locally in comparison to other Asian strategic centres, making it the perfect hub to develop our Asia-Pacific regional strategy. There is also a strong flow of investment originating in the region to projects in Africa, where we have been growing our presence with a number of remarkable deals," comments André de Sousa Vieira, partner and head of the office.

André de Sousa Vieira is a banking and finance partner specialised in project development and finance, who regularly advises on major international projects, mainly in the energy and infrastructure sector.
