On his incorporation, Ignacio Hidalgo comments: "For me, it is a great opportunity to join a global firm such as RSM and to help make its Labour team a national reference. If 2020 was a year where the Labour area was essential for many companies, 2021 will be no less, given the need of all companies to face very important strategic decisions that will affect their workforces and their own future. At RSM, we want to help all companies to overcome this situation, and we are sure that we can be the partner they need to achieve this."

David García, vice-president of RSM Spain and managing partner of Tax & Legal, said that "now more than ever it is time to focus on the needs of the working world, both for companies and for workers. At RSM Spain we are working on the process of incorporating the best talent through the incorporation of teams of professionals with a high level of sectoral specialisation and great teamwork skills."
