Spanish Government will appoint Cani Fernández to lead the National Commission on Markets

and Competition (CNMC)

According to ElPais.com, former Cuatrecasas partner, Cani Fernández will be replacing to José María Marín Quemada. The President's Cabinet head, Iván Redondo, hired her as an advisor last February. At that moment, Fernández, after 23 years working in the prestigious firm, asked for a leave of absence, a request that was approved by the firm's Board of Directors.

The Council of Ministers is expected to approve this Tuesday the proposal of the Ministry of Economy to start the pending renewal in the institution, including Fernández's appointment along with the replacement of other four members whose term of office has expired.
