Six leading legal technology suppliers have joined forces to launch The Global Efficiency Group

With a combined worldwide presence, the new alliance offers compelling 'follow the sun' customer support to international professional services firms and global corporates.

The Global Efficiency Group (TGE Group), an alliance of information management technology suppliers, has launched today. This new alliance brings together six leading specialists in information and document lifecycle management, to offer tailor-made solutions to some of the largest international professional services firms and big corporates across the globe, based on a uniform framework for project execution and collaboration. Collectively, TGE Group represents one of the largest and most experienced pool of iManage resources available globally, enabling a unified approach to meet ongoing global demand for the iManage Work Productivity Platform.

All members of TGE Group are well recognised and respected in their local markets. They include Ascertus in the UK and mainland Europe; Office Information Australia (OIA), covering the Asia Pacific region; Eficio, with a presence in Canada and France; Lexsoft covering Spain and Latin America; Ounet Sistemi, based in Italy; and Co-Operative Computing in South Africa.

With the formation of TGE Group, members are better placed to support the growth objectives of their customer organisations. Carlos García-Egoceaga, CEO of Lexsoft Systems, illustrated, "We are now the perfect partners for organisations who aspire for international expansion, especially outside of the US and European markets. We are finding that Latin America, Africa, Southeast Asia and even Russia are major target markets for organisations. We can now deliver projects on a global scale."

According to the press release "TGE Group's expertise and services are comprehensive – from business analysis, technical consultancy, and project management through to customer success programmes and ongoing support – all of which is offered in the local language, alongside English. Teams in member organisations are fluent in numerous languages, including Chinese, Spanish, French, Italian, and Portuguese, to name a few. With member organisations spread worldwide, TGE Group offers reliable 'follow the sun' technical support to customers. TGE Group provides a wide range of integrated business solutions spanning case and matter management, contract management, document and email management, legal spend management, knowledge management, process automation, cloud and much more."
